THE OLYMPUSS GAMES

The Olympuss Games series is set in ancient Greece and ancient Rome. This 4 book quest is a 'purrfect' way of bringing history alive for 6-8 year olds. The books can be read in any order as stand alone adventures - or as a sequence.

"Spartapuss is already the star of a great series and now younger readers can enjoy his son's exploits in Ancient Greece and Ancient Rome. Not the ancient worlds you may know, though - humans have never existed here. Son of Spartapuss has a lot to learn when a mysterious stranger offers to pay his debts he finds himself in the School for Strays, a school for gladiators.. and en route to the Olympuss Games. If you love puns, then you are in for a real treat! And if you don't, but want to learn a bit of ancient history whilst enjoying a fun story, either way, this is a great series for you." Parents in Touch

Suggested reading age 7 plus

Viking dog Beowuff is all bark and no bite, a disgrace to the memory of his fierce ancestors. Banished from his homeland, (for helping Viking raiders loot his chief's bone hoard), Beowuff finds himself shipwrecked on a troubled island. The king needs a champion. His Great Kennel is under attack from the hideous Hendel – an evil chicken of monstrous proportions. Can Beowuff save the day?

Beowuff's adventures might sound familiar to history lovers, because they echo the ancient tale of Beowulf (1000 A.D.), the earliest recorded poem in Old English.

'A fantastic book for young people who want to enjoy a funny historical story. I would give it 9 / 10.'

BEOWUFF AND THE DRAGON RAIDERS

Beowuff and his weak-witted friend Arnuf find themselves washed up at the Sine Carne monastery where a peace loving order of 'meatless monks' work the earth. But the bewildered brothers are under attack from a ruthless pack of Dragon raiders – thieving heathens with the scent of monk-gold in their savage snouts. Will this day be the order's last?

THE AGE OF BRONZE

Here's a true story that's waited three hundred years to be told and this little book is the first to tell it. What do pirates love more than anything? That's right - treasure!

In the year 1721 a pirate captain named John Taylor took the largest single prize ever on the high seas. He and his crew of mutineers captured a ship full of diamonds that were bound for the King of Portugal. Now they belonged to the pirate Captain Taylor. But can he hold on to his treasure?

Meet GobDrop – the world’s most disgusting goblin. He’s no looker – even by goblin standards. He never cleans his purple and green fur - so he has personal hygiene problems that would put a troll-maid off her fist-finger sandwiches. If there is one thing that GobDrop hates, it is elves. Especially annoying little musical elves with their silly squeaky voices. Unfortunately, SnowShine - the smallest elf ever, gets lost in the mountains. And guess whose cave he wanders into - carrying his magic bag full of happy songs?

Hundreds of years ago, in the East of England there was an area called The Smeeth. Strange demons haunted the fields and villages of this marshy hinterland. Into this West-Norfolk wilderness strode an unlikely champion: a bluff young boy called Tom Hickathrift...

SUMMARY:

As tall as a tree and as wide as a wall, young Tom sets out to prove himself a hero to his disapproving mother and his ever-so-hard-to-please girlfriend, Sarah. Tom finds himself deep in the dark, dank Smeeth and has to face man-eating ogres, ghostly dogs, talking tree spirits, dragons, bears, wolves – and worst of all, his own ravenous hunger for pie.

Lemmy's world is rocked when he loses his bedroom to his new baby brother. He turns to Gran for comfort and a bedtime story. She tells the tale of Count Milkula, a selfish, noisy, milk-crazed creature from the monotonous mountains of Mamsylvania.

Lemmy finds out that, like baby brothers, Mampires can't do anything for themselves. That's why looking after them is such an adventure.

"There is something for both adults and children. Phoenix's bright wacky cartoon-like illustrations match the very wacky story of the milk-crazed, sucking Count."

on the handle and the hatch door opened. Nick followed right behind, pushing himself into the dark space. The darkness on the other side of the door was just big enough for two and altogether dark except for a blue light, somewhere above their heads. Nick flicked on the torch again and found the chamber empty except for a steel ladder, reaching upwards towards the faint glow.

Nick drew another breath and handed the mask back. Jen thought about the Angler Fish, a deep sea dweller that lured smaller fish into its jaws with a tiny point of light. She was startled by a sensation behind her. The hatch was closing automatically. Jen shuddered. She leaped to check - whether the hatch had locked itself behind them but there was barely enough room in the compartment for two. Nick began to climb the ladder, rising towards the glow. Moments later, he emerged squinting into a partially lit chamber that rose high above them. As soon as Jen had caught up, he pushed his mask up. The two of them hung like climbers on a cliff wall - with the water echoing through the steel track.

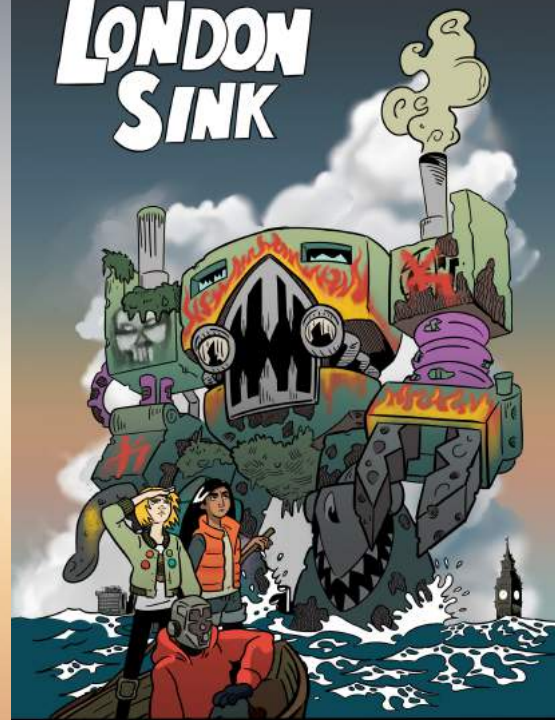

beyond it, the base of a steel wall - unmistakably man made. Jen tugged at his arm, keen for another gulp of air. As Jen breathed, Nick saw it. A huge shape rising from the dark - bigger than any raft he'd ever seen underwater. Jen motioned towards it - and despite himself, Nick followed. Like pilot fish circling a shark, the two made their way along the side of the hull, searching for openings.

‘This is a terrifically atmospheric page-turning adventure told through words and comic art. Set in the near future, in a flooded London where rival police forces – one for adults and one for kids – compete to keep the peace, it intertwines the story of Jemima, daughter of the Chief Inspector of Police, with contemporary issues of climate change and the environment in an original and provocative way but without sounding patronising. It’s a rattling good read and one in which you are sure to be drawn into Jemima’s exploits of survival.’
