Viking Placenames
 Viking words are in many placenames. The Viking word might be at the start, in the middle or at the end of the placename.

DALE
 A Valley
 Places with 'dale' in their names are using the Viking word for 'valley'. Examples include Ammanley, Poynton, Barmston, and Poynton.

Road
 Streets, villages or towns with 'gate' in them are using the Viking word for 'road'. Examples include Broughton, Harrogate and Wharfedale.

A Church
 Placenames with 'kirk' in them are using the Viking word for 'church'. Examples include Chirk, Palsby, Kirkby, Kirkland and Newby.

BERG
WICK

A Bay, a Mountain and a Village
 The Viking words for bay (bæ), mountain (berg) and village (vīk) are used in many placenames. Examples include Barmston, Barmston and Barmston.

Placenames Change
 Over many hundreds of years, the way that people pronounce a word can change. For example, in some places where people spoke differently, the Viking word 'berg' became 'borough' or 'burgh'. Middleborough and Edinburgh are placenames where this has happened.

TEACHER FEEDBACK

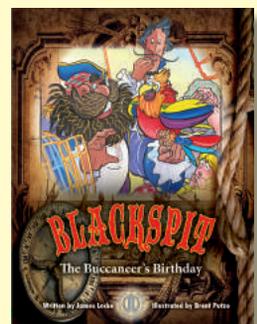

"My kids love your books. In guided reading today, the kids laughed hysterically while reading A Hundred Million Peas (The Literacy Tower, Lime Book Band). The joy of reading was beyond apparent. They wanted to read it over and over again."

"One boy easily decoded 'gargantuan' and then asked 'What does it mean?' That day he had fun using it whenever he could, with the expression 'Hey, that's gargantuan!'"

"Literacy Tower books are amongst other books in the reading boxes – but they're the books our kids pick out. As teachers, we want kids to want to read, and Literacy Tower books do that!"

"The genuinely high-interest non-fiction books have all been designed in ways that are respectful of today's kids – especially our older boys with fewer literacy skills. And all of them love the great titles and covers."
